Court Refuses To Halt Election Of Legislators

HARRISBURG (AP)—Commonwealth Court refused Wednesday to halt the November election of state legislators, but simultaneously warned the assemblymen it had the power to act if they did not reapportion their districts.

The court did so in a unanimous decision which refused to grant an immediate injunction to halt the Nov. 6 election of 235 state legislators.

In its decision, the court warned "The legislature is now informed as it has not been heretofore, that constitutional apportionment is a matter that can be adjudicated if the legislature fails to do so."

Petitions for an immediate injunction to halt the November general election were brought to the court by four complainants, who held the current composition of the General Assembly did not provide for equitable representation throughout the state.

Four Suits Filed

The suits were filed by the Philadelphia Committee of Seventy, a citizens' watchdog organization; Leo F. Driscoll Jr., Lower Gwynedd Twp., Montgomery County; Raymond R. Start, Upper Darby, Delaware County; and Marshall J. Seidman, Oreland, Montgomery County.

They brought their complaints before the court following the U.S.

Supreme Court decision earlier this year which held it within judicial bounds to review the apportionment of state legislatures.

The petitions were opposed by the commonwealth, which conceded the need for reapportionment, but argued that the legislature first be given the opportunity to do so before the courts issued a mandate.

Uphold Commonwealth

In effect, the court upheld the commonwealth's position by ruling:

"While these issues concerning reapportionment are justifiable, there should be no attempt to adjudicate them until the legislature has had an opportunity to reapportion the senatorial and representative districts at the forthcoming session of the General Assembly."

The legislature's first opportunity to answer the reapportionment question will be at its regular session which convenes next January.

The court held that issuing an immediate injunction against the November elections "could only result in stopping the election machinery, thereby denying the electorate the right to vote for persons who were duly nominated at the last primary election in May."

"It seems to us that it would be improper to invalidate a primary election when that machinery has been lawfully and faithfully complied with," the court continued.

"It (the injunction) would negate the will of the electorate by judicial fiat. To effectuate any course of action in the time that is allowed between now and the November election would be fraught with difficulty and undue haste," the court added.

Estes Balks Answers At Grand Jury Quiz

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP) — Billie Sol Estes balked at answering a long list of questions by the Robertson County grand jury Wednesday. But after a conference with Dist. Judge John M. Barron, the promoter agreed to answer some of them.

Estes spent 45 minutes with the grand jury, which is investigating the death of Henry H. Marshall, an Agriculture Department official who had been investigating Estes' cotton allotments.

Then Gornie Matthews, jury foreman, reported to Barron that Estes had refused to answer some questions. Matthews asked the judge to compel Estes to answer.

Matthews handed Barron a single-spaced transcript, several legal-sized pages long, of the questions he said Estes refused to answer.

The number of questions and their nature were not disclosed, but persons in the courtroom estimated there were as many as 95 questions on the list.

After a lengthy conference in his chambers, Barron said he had gone over each question with Estes and his lawyer, John Cofer, and that in his opinion Estes could answer some of the questions without incriminating himself. But the judge said Estes was within his rights in not answering others.

None of Estes' testimony before the grand jury or his statements to Barron were disclosed.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson would say only that Estes' testimony "concerned the development of evidence" and that he "does not consider Estes a suspect in this (Marshall) case."

The grand jury is seeking to determine whether Marshall, 52, was slain or took his own life on March 31, 1961, at his ranch near here June 3, 1961.

Authorities reopened the Marshall case when investigations of Estes' affairs developed that Marshall had been looking into Estes' cotton allotments.

Estes, whose multimillion-dollar cotton, grain storage and fertilizer empire is in receivership, is charged with fraud and felony theft in connection with his fertilizer business. Congressional committees are investigating his cotton allotments and grain storage operations.

Official Charges Slander

WASHINGTON (AP)—The president of Commercial Solvents Corp. has denied a vicious slander Texas testimony that he suggested setting Billie Sol Estes up in Switzerland or Brazil if things got too hot for Estes.

Maynard C. Wheeler, president of the New York chemical firm, said Wednesday most of the testimony of lawyer Frank Cain at Dallas was "false and defamatory."

Wheeler told a House Government Operations subcommittee his company's relation with Estes "was that of customer and supplier—and no more."

Commercial Solvents supplied Estes with huge amounts of anhydrous ammonia, a liquid fertilizer, on credit. The now-bankrupt Pecos manipulator still owes the company $3.7 million.

Wheeler said the credit extended to Estes was amply secured by Estes' assignment to Commercial Solvents of all his government payments for storing surplus grain, and by other security. The grain is still in Estes' elevators, but the payments have been impounded since Estes' house of cards collapsed.

Wheeler told of a March 18 breakfast meeting at Estes' home with Estes and Cain, a Dallas lawyer who represented a finance company that held mortgages on fertilizer tanks supposedly owned by Estes.

Point by point, Wheeler denied saying most of the things that Cain testified he had said when Cain appeared at a Texas court of inquiry into Estes' tangled affairs.

Wheeler denied discussing a system of secret numbered Swiss bank accounts and said if Estes had one of these accounts he had no knowledge of it. Such numbered accounts can be used to salt away money anonymously.

News In Brief

OAS Threatens All Europeans

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The Secret Army Organization told Europeans Wednesday night to prepare to flee Algeria after putting the torch to everything they cannot carry.

A pirate radio broadcast said, "We will leave nothing behind. We are not joking."

Secret army commandos already are carrying out a scorched earth campaign against public and private property.

The broadcast came as Moslem nationalists flatly rejected a bid for concessions to Algeria's Europeans and announced a program of Socialist-type revolutionary reforms once the country is independent.

Alcatraz Break Blamed On Age

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Prison officials declared Wednesday that erosion and the general age of Alcatraz Federal Prison made it easier for three bank robbers to escape.

They also said there is a remote possibility the prisoners still are on the 12 acre island in San Francisco Bay.

Warden Olin G. Blackwell and Fred T. Wilkinson, assistant director of the Bureau of Prisons at Washington, D.C., held a news conference at "The Rock."

"Alcatraz is old," Wilkinson said. "It is in a debilitated condition. It would take a lot of money—$5 million—to bring it up to the standards we require for maximum security."

Gubernatorial Vote In Primary

HARRISBURG (AP) — U. S. Rep. William W. Scranton, the Republican candidate for governor, outpooled his Democratic counterpart, Richardson Dilworth, by 93,063 votes in the May 15 primary, official election returns showed Wednesday.

Statistics released by the State Elections Bureau gave Scranton a total of 743,785 votes to 650,692 for Dilworth. However, Republicans outvoted Democrats in the gubernatorial primary races 953-928 to 891,951.

Scranton, a 44-year-old multimillionaire from Lackawanna County defeated independent candidate J. Collins McSparran of Drumore in his bid for the GOP nomination.

Delay Strike On Three Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flight engineers temporarily delayed Wednesday night a strike they have threatened against three major airlines while federal mediators strove for a peaceful settlement.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg hurried to the capital from New York City to take a personal hand in an effort to avert a strike which could put a big dent in both domestic and overseas air travel.

JFK To Speak At Philadelphia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will speak July 4 at the birthplace of America's Declaration of Independence — Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

His acceptance of an invitation to address the final session of the National Governors' Conference there was announced by the White House Wednesday.

Afterward Kennedy, who will travel to Philadelphia that morning, will go directly to Camp David in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains to spend the remainder of the holiday with his family.

Mobster Action Revealed In Testimony On Actors' Guild

TESTIFIES AT PROBE — Philadelphia night club entertainer Dick Jones testifies before Senate investigations, subcommittee declaring he was an outcast, with fellow union members forbidden to speak to him, after he sued the administrative secretary of the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) for libel. The Senate group is probing conditions in the night club field and AGVA activities.

(AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former special prosecutor testified Wednesday that singers, dancers and B-girls were used by a well-organized crime syndicate to attract suckers to hoodlum-operated night clubs in the Chicago area.

Testifying at a Senate investigation of the American Guild of Variety Artists, William J. Scott, a former special assistant U.S. attorney in the northern district of Illinois, said: "These entertainers were forced to participate in such illegal activities as prostitution, B-drinking, and pickpocketing."

"Members of this very well-organized crime syndicate were engaged not only in gambling and vice," he said, "but in virtually every other conceivable type of criminal wrongdoing."

Reporting on a special investigation of crime syndicate operations in Calumet City, Ill. in 1959, Scott said it was found that virtually all of the girl entertainers involved were members of the AGVA, an AFL-CIO union.

He estimated at least half a million dollars was collected from vice alone, and said another $10 million went tax-free. He said in some cases the girls were beaten by bartenders and kept in such mortal fear for their lives that they would not testify in court.

Scott appeared at a hearing of the Senate Investigations subcommittee which is inquiring into the alleged mistreatment of AGVA members by underworld employers in connivance with union officials.

Scott ticked off the names of racketeers he said were turned up in the 1959 investigation. These included Tony Accardo, Leslie (Killer Kane) Kruse, Ralph Pierce and Frank Laporte.

He said there was a meeting in late 1954 between Calumet City night club operators and Ernest East, regional director for AGVA. At this meeting, he said, the owners refused to sign a master union contract under which they would be required to deduct and report Social Security taxes of the union members.

"The club owners and their attorneys realize, of course," Scott said, "that by withholding taxes from the girls' salaries they would have to disclose not only the girls' legal income but their illegal income from B-drinking and prostitution."

Fast preceded Scott to the witness stand. He said he was fired as AGVA's Midwest regional director because he refused to tell the union's administrative secretary what he had confided to investigators for the Senate subcommittee.

Fast said this union official, Jackie Bright, was well aware of conditions in the union. Bright is scheduled to testify later.

Fast also told the senators it's a lot easier and safer to organize night club entertainers in Chicago if you know the right people.

Fast said that when he first arrived in Chicago in 1963 to organize the night spots there he was greeted with threats to lay off or he would be found in a lake.

But he said he struck up an acquaintance with Jimmy (The Monk) Allegretti and things began looking up. Subsequently, Allegretti, a silent partner in some Chicago night clubs and invited him to testify.

"I became very friendly with Jimmy Allegretti," Fast said.

No Enforcement

Fast said he also made it easier on night club operators by never trying to enforce union rules designed to protect women entertainers from being compelled to double as bar girls, or B-girls.

The rules were in a contract clause he negotiated, Fast said, but "I never told any operator he really had to enforce it."

The subcommittee was in the second day of hearings into complaints that AGVA members, especially strip tease and exotic dancers, were required to mix with customers in violation of the law.

Actress Penny Singleton, a former president of AGVA, charged Tuesday that the union does nothing to protect its members from being exploited by night club owners who require them to hustle drinks in order to hold their jobs.

Million Income

The subcommittee adduced evidence from AGVA files that most of the AFL-CIO-affiliated union's revenues come from dues and initiation fees, and total around a million dollars a year. For 1961-62 the figures were: dues $639,456, initiation fees $24,653.

Fast, who said he was terminated from the union's payroll last February, testified a new girl member may have to pay several initiation fees. He said, under the rules, a girl has six months in which to pay in installments a fee of $100 to $150. If she fails to pay the full amount by the end of that period she forfeits all the installments she has paid and has to start all over again.

The witness said he had no personal knowledge of prostitution but agreed with subcommittee counsel Jerome Adlerman that it was "notorious" in Chicago.

Kennedy Warns Khrush On Untoward Action Anywhere

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy cautioned Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday against any "untoward action anywhere" that might upset progress in creating an independent and neutral Laos.

Kennedy joined Khrushchev in lauding the new Laos agreement on a coalition government and in voicing hope the settlement will ease cold war disputes around the world.

Kennedy spoke in a short, friendly note responding to one from the Soviet chief.

But as the White House Wednesday was making public Kennedy's reply, U.S. policy makers noted with displeasure press reports from Laos that neutralist Premier-designate Souvanna Phouma and pro-Western Phoumi Nosavan are about to take off for Europe.

This leaves the third leader in the new triumvirate, pro-Communist, anti-American Prince Souphavong, in temporary charge of state affairs in the troubled Southeast Asia kingdom.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said it is premature to say whether Phoumi will attend the expected reconvening in Geneva of the 14-nation conference on Laos, as news accounts indicate.

In any case, White pointed out, the new Laotian government will not get under way formally until the Geneva meeting officially approves it.

Possibilities Cited

U.S. authorities also took the position that:

—If Phoumi and Souvanna Phouma are absent, their ministers at home will not have to take orders from the Red prince.

—Actual power in Laos will remain in the hands of the rival factions over areas they now control until such time as their armies are integrated.

—This process of working out a functioning, nationwide government will take months.

Washington officials adopted a wait-and-see approach on whether Khrushchev's note of harmony on Laos will spread to other East-West frictions. Independence and neutrality for Laos is the one major goal Kennedy and Khrushchev have been able to agree on since they met in Vienna a year ago.

Maps Makes FBI's 'Ten Most Wanted'

EDWARD Howard Maps, 39, of 510 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, was placed on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list yesterday.

Maps is charged with the murder of his wife and four-month-old daughter by local and state authorities and with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution by the FBI.

The last time anyone saw Maps was the night of Jan. 21, 1962, when he and his family left the home of a friend at approximately 9 p.m.

The fire alarm was sounded at 10:48 p.m. when a neighbor called the Stroudsburg Control Center and reported the house on fire and full of smoke.

Mrs. Christine Wolbaugh Maps, 21, was found by firemen lying on the kitchen floor and the daughter, Julia Louise, was found on a wicker bench about 15 feet from the point where the mother was found.

Mrs. Maps died in Monroe County General Hospital from a fractured skull. The daughter was dead on arrival at the hospital from smoke inhalation.

A Monroe County coroner's jury ruled the deaths "double-murder" and arson.

Maps is five feet five inches tall, approximately 160 pounds, gray-black curly hair and when last seen was wearing blue dungarees, finger-tip coat and sandals.

Maps is a former member of the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) and has been paid and has to start all over again.

The witness said he had no personal knowledge of prostitution but agreed with subcommittee counsel Jerome Adlerman that it was "notorious" in Chicago.

Threats Liven Debate In House On Raising Debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Threats of blackmail and a special session of Congress enlivened House debate Wednesday on an administration bill to increase the national debt limit.

Republicans raised the blackmail issue, while Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, dangled the special session warning following a huddle Tuesday with President Kennedy.

The President wants the debt roof raised from its present $300 billion to $308 billion for the next 12 months. Republicans are backing a $6-billion boost. Unless Congress acts, the present temporary $300-billion ceiling will drop automatically to $285 billion at the end of this month.

Voting on the measure is scheduled for Tuesday.

Mills told the House that any attempt to restrict the government's spending authority at this time might lead to a downturn in the economy. The GOP proposal, he said, would put the Treasury in a "squeeze" and could lead to a special session of Congress in the fall.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., said threats have been made to withdraw defense contracts from areas whose representatives don't support the administration proposal.

Ford said Ron Linton, an official in the Defense Department, called the Chrysler Corp. Washington representative, Wally Edwards, and asked him to find out how Michigan Republicans were voting on the $308-billion limit.

Pressure Charged

Linton told Edwards, Ford said, that if the limit was not raised to $308 billion, defense contracts would be curtailed and a specific missile project in which Chrysler was interested would be in jeopardy.

When Edwards called him to find out how he was voting, Ford said, "I told him that the Republicans in Michigan were voting unanimously against it and that we were not going to be blackmailed by this kind of approach from the Defense Department."

Ford's remarks touched off applause from the Republicans and several other members stood up to report similar incidents.

Rep. R. Walter Riehlman, R-N.Y., said in his 16 years in Congress he had never before been approached by an industry representative warning that jobs in his district would be lost if he did not vote a certain way.

He said the condition of state mental hospitals under Republicanism was "the blackest page in our history."

In eight years of Democratic leadership, he continued, the state has seen major accomplishments in the areas of mental health, highway construction, highway safety, education, tourist promotion, library development and industrial development.

He noted that some consider these are steps on the road to socialism or communism. He read a 100-year-old clipping from a Lansing, Mich., newspaper editorial that made similar charges about a proposal to put up horse watering troughs. That touched a responsive chord among the assembled Democrats and Lawrence went on.

He attacked U. S. Rep. William W. Scranton, GOP candidate for governor, as "the willingest 'Wily' they Republican leaders could find in Pennsylvania."

GOP maneuvering leading to Scranton's endorsement was "one of the most dastardly attempts to dictate to the people," he could recall, Lawrence said. He claimed big money interests dictated the final choice.

Report On The Delaware River Basin

A Daily Record Feature

Editor's Note: The Federal Government and the States of Pennsylvania, Delaware, New York and New Jersey have joined to form the Delaware River Basin Commission—giving it great power of control over water usage and the development and conservation of water resources. Associated Press staff writer Noah Halper, in a five-part series, explores what this means to people in the four states. The following is the first article.

By NOAH HALPER

THERE have been 40 years of talk about developing the water resources of the Delaware River and its basin. Now, the do-something phase has begun.

The hurricane-spurred floods of 1955, taking 100 lives and causing $100 million damage, and the drought of 1957, which brought curtailed water usage and huge crop losses, graphically illustrated the need for controlling and husbanding the waters of the Delaware and its tributaries.

Projects envisioned by the Delaware River Basin Commission could have minimized the effects of each of these occurrences, the flooding by some 45 percent.

Compared with many areas of the nation, the basin is relatively water-rich. But that is for today's population and for today's industrial demands.

The Commission, basically using Army Engineers' reports and surveys, is planning for needs through the year 2,010. But some areas within the basin will have more immediate problems.

An Engineers' report says, for example, that the upper Schuylkill River area in Pennsylvania, with Reading as its primary metropolitan area, could begin experiencing water shortages by 1971. The commission has adopted a program, known as the Blue Marsh project, to provide water supplies, flood control and recreation for this area.

The Commission's plan calls for Blue Marsh to be in operation no later than 1969.

That is one example, in general terms, of the 20 projects of the commission has scheduled in what it calls phase one of its comprehensive plan. Included are some projects already undertaken by individual states in conjunction with Federal agencies.

But for now the commission is in an embryo stage. It was only in March that it appointed an executive director and established its first budget, $330,000, to make plans reality.

The working boss is James F. Wright, a 47-year-old native of Auburn, N. Y., who came to the $25,000-a-year directorship from a post as chief deputy director of California's Department of Water Resources.

Wright majored in political science at Syracuse University and graduated Magna Cum Laude in 1937. After two years of graduate study in public administration he began a career in state and Federal Government unbroken except for a period as a Navy Ensign in World War II.

Wright is most concerned at the moment with hiring a professional, permanent staff—planning and programming, research and data experts, engineers who can take charge, experts who can avoid the many pitfalls of the huge undertaking.

It could be several months before this task is complete and the Commission moves from its temporary headquarters in Philadelphia to its permanent home at a site yet to be selected in Trenton, N. J.

"But until then, we aren't sitting on our hands. We have a lot to do to get on the schedule the Commission has established," says Wright.

Wright is also assembling whatever data has been compiled by the scores of regional agencies interested in one particular area or one specialized phase of basin water. Already available is the huge mass of data gathered by the Army Engineers.

Because some of the projects will involve only a single state directly, state engineers and agencies will be contributing to the Commission's projects.

For the day-to-day operations the members are each contributing 24 per cent of the $330,000 budget, except for Delaware which is paying 4 percent. Financing of the projects will be on a divided basis, with the Commission issuing bonds, depending on what each project means to the area.

Where flood control is involved, the Federal Government will contribute a major share of the cost. To that end, virtually every project in the so-called phase 1 has a flood control aspect.

Next—The Basin and its Resources.

Helping Themselves

The Association of American Railroads has analyzed 1,512 newspaper editorials that appeared in newspapers during the first three months of this year. All 50 states and the District of Columbia are represented.

By overwhelming majorities (and often opinion was unanimous) these papers agreed that railroads are essential to the nation's economy and security; that they must remain under private ownership and operation; that they are in a serious financial condition and must be permitted adequate earnings; that they are over-regulated and unfairly taxed; that they should have greater freedom to make competitive rates; that they are hurt by union "feather-bedding" or outmoded work rules; that Congress should act to correct inequities of transportation policy, and so on.

But there was an exception to the rule. Forty-five editorials dealt with the question of whether the railroads have helped themselves and are progressive. Of these, only eight said Yes and 37 said No.

This is a curious misconception. It is certainly true that the railroads have not done as much to improve operations as they, and their patrons, would like—their financial plight and union recalcitrance have prevented that. But, in the light of the circumstances, they have done a great deal. Everything used in railroad operations, from cross-ties to locomotives, has been improved, often enormously. The whole thought has been to offer the best of service at the lowest cost. New freight cars of revolutionary design and capable of handling increased loads, have been developed. Containerization has sped loading and unloading. And such innovations as electronically operated yards and signal systems play a major role. Since World War II vast sums of money have been spent annually on improvements, and in most of those years railroad earnings have been far below any reasonable level.

The railroads are doing the best possible job with the resources they have. Their future actions will necessarily depend on what is done to relieve them of obsolete, unfair, destructive, and artificial burdens that prevent economies and a living profit.

The Newspaper's Function

"You never miss the water 'til the well runs dry" is an old and familiar saying. Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, Michigan Democrat, paraphrased this philosophy recently when she told her colleagues in Congress what it means for residents of a metropolitan city to live without a daily newspaper. She was referring to the recent strike which forced Detroit's daily newspapers to suspend.

She cited the plight of investors with no financial pages to inform them of stock prices; no "letters to the editors" to let them know what their neighbors are griping about; no news of political campaigns. "And if you die, the undertaker attends the funeral — nobody else even knows you are dead," she quipped.

In a more serious vein, the Michigan legislator had this to say about daily newspapers — which we acknowledge with a modest bow: "Democracy can not survive without an informed people. In a great city, much of that information is supplied by local newspapers, discussing local issues. The welfare of the business community, management and worker alike; the social and intellectual life; the safety of the citizens depend to a far greater degree than you think upon the daily newspapers."

The Republican Posture

Richard Nixon's victory in the California primaries keeps him in the frame of Republican candidates for President. He has one more hurdle: the general election in which he must defeat Pat Brown. Should he defeat Governor Brown, he will undoubtedly be the Republican candidate for President. Should he be defeated by Governor Brown, he will be out of the picture altogether.

Should Nixon remain a candidate for the Presidency, he will undoubtedly be nominated. His only serious opponent could be Nelson Rockefeller who is no longer as potent a factor in the affairs of the Party as he was a year ago. He seems to be fading away as a political force. Should Nixon fail in California, the Rockefeller effort may revive.

Both Nixon and Rockefeller may go slow in seeking the nomination in 1964, expecting that President Kennedy will get a second term. Their objective will be to see if President Kennedy falls on his face politically before they commit themselves irrevocably. Each is young enough to wait until 1968 without damage.

The Republican Party is now at the stage when it can no longer opportunistically hope that the Kennedy Administration will slip. Thus far, the Republicans have brought two charges against the Kennedys:

1. That a dynasty is being established;

2. That the Executive is seeking more power than the Constitution provides for.

Point one is meaningless. A dynasty would mean that the succession to the Presidency would cease to be Constitutional but would be by a process of birth. In a word, John, an infant, would be expected to succeed his father dynastically, probably with a regent.

What those who refer to as a dynasty is altogether something different. They want to make an issue that there are too many Kennedys in the Administration. Let us look at the facts: before he was elected President, Jack was a United States Senator. Before Jack was elected President, Robert was counsel to a Congressional Committee. Both have seen long service in government.

The only additional Kennedy relative now in the government is Sargent Shriver, head of the Peace Corps. Ted Kennedy is seeking the Senatorship from Massachusetts and may or may not be elected. As the record stands at the moment only one has been added, namely Shriver.

Point two, most of the additional powers came to the Presidency during Franklin D. Roosevelt's Presidency. The issue that has arisen in the Kennedy Administration is one of stand-by powers.

If we are realistic about the Cold War and the prospect of our economic defeat, largely due to over-production and under-pricing ourselves in world markets, it may be necessary to give the President stand-by powers. This is a moot question over which there should be an intelligent debate.

If there were no war situation, the expansion of Executive authority could not be tolerated. We face an attack on our economy by both Soviet Russia and the Common Market. The President must not only be vigilant but must be able to act immediately.

On these two issues the Republicans cannot fight a campaign. On the issue of foreign aid, foreign trade, the tariff and the relationship of domestic costs to international prices the opposition Party can raise an issue and fight hard.

The next three years will be bitter ones in American history. This is a crucial period that will have to deal with the accumulated errors of 30 years and partisan feeling will ride high.

During such an historical era, men with small ideas and without courage will be hurt politically. We are moving into an era more like that which faced Andrew Jackson rather than that which faced James Madison. Out of it will come a changed America and the period between 1964 and 1968, no matter who is President, will be one of the sharpest in American history because there can be no waiting for decisions too long.

This then requires keen thinking in the opposition. Those who like to play politics by polls, who keep their ears to the ground, will not serve. The opposition to the Kennedy Administration must be in the hands of a prophet. Will it be Richard Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller or Barry Goldwater? After the 1962 Congressional campaign the Republicans must be ready with a program. Slogans and imprecations will not do.

Harrisburg — The question of presidential "loss of face" may have much to do with the governorship campaign in Pennsylvania this fall.

Unquestionably to the average Pennsylvanian this "loss of face" thing may sound like so much oriental chit-chat emanating from the land of the geisha girls and the bamboo dropshades, but nevertheless it may have its counterpart on the Keystone State scene this year.

For example, reports persist around Capitol Hill that President Kennedy is holding off any firm commitments on campaigning this fall in behalf of the Keystone State Democratic ticket until administration strategists can pick up some firm indication as to how the gubernatorial political winds are blowing — that is, in which direction: Democratic or Republican.

Miss Betty Ann Brown was named Miss Buck Hill Falls during the festivities there over the past weekend.

Stroudsburg playground officials announced the swimming pool would be closed every Tuesday to allow the employees to clean it.

Firemen from three departments in the area fought a mock blaze at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. They showed their knowledge and ability as to what they could do if they were ever confronted with a major fire.

State police were searching for a man who took clothing valued at $50 from the residence of John J. Stettler, Bushkill.

The Pennsylvania Story

Presidential 'Loss Of Face'

In other words, if the winds are blowing in a favorable direction that seemingly assure Democratic gubernatorial candidate Richardson Dilworth of gaining the nod in the November 6 showdown — Mr. Kennedy can be expected to make a foray or two into the Keystone State in support of the Democratic candidate's gubernatorial candidacy.

On the other hand if wind snifflings of administration samplers show a heavy question-mark or a decided trend in the direction of Republican gubernatorial hopeful William W. Scranton, chances are good the Kennedy charm will not be cast upon the Keystone State landscape.

Reasoning behind all this of course revolves around that somewhat frightening modern day concept on the American scene of "loss of face" on the part of "political greats."

In days of yore when political campaigning was viewed as one in which "the great ones" came to the aid of those in difficulty, the question of loss of face never entered the picture. It was simply a question of getting in there and pitching — come what may.

Today this concept seems to be undergoing a strong change — one in which the political great or greats come into the picture when success seems assured, or reasonably so!

This of course is to assure that the great prestige and renowned drawing power of the personage concerned — in this case, Mr. Kennedy — is not impaired, watered down or "damaged" in any respect.

One appearance of Mr. Kennedy seems assured at this point — that being in September when the Keystone State's annual $100-a-plate fund raising blossoms forth at the Farm Show Building here.

However this does not involve any "face" facet of any note inasmuch as its nature is one strictly of the general all-party type, with some kudos for Mr. Dilworth thrown in automatically.

To hit the hustings with two or three personal appearances in behalf of a gubernatorial candidate who may (depending on what polls and samplings show) be on the losing side, is indeed something else.

Democratic strategists here pooh-pooh (of course) the loss of face aspect and while admitting that nothing further has been firmed other than the September fund-raising shindig, point out that "these things" (later commitments) have to be worked out.

One thing seems certain: in this case at least, will go along somewhat heartily, we're sure, with helping the President avoid any loss of face!

Al Sweeney, the coin-collecting barber, is at a new stand on No. Fifth St., near the new Stroud Township Firehouse.

Sweeney long has been manning one of the chairs at Al Scavo's tonsorial spot at Main St., Stroudsburg.

Alphonse is just as much interested in his coin collections. In fact the little one travels all over to pick up rarities for his bank which is considered one of the better ones in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Marty Messner, Green St., East Stroudsburg, is now known as "The Hot Dog King." Marty, a boasting member of the Varsity E Club, helps out nightly at Eastburg Little League games.

His chief chore is getting the "weenies" available for fans who attend the contests between youngsters in the 8-12 age group.

Folks involved in Eastburg T.L. affairs constantly laud Marty for his help throughout the season.

Lew Hastie, playground supervisor in East Stroudsburg, looks for a banner year in activities for the youth of the borough.

A pre-season schedule indicates that the youngsters of Eastburg will be busy from morning to night.

Lew has another fine staff of instructors lined up for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hintz are still talking about their "wonderful" winter in Florida.

The personable Stroudsburg couple recently helped former Daily Record General Manager Merle Ostrom, celebrate a birthday.

Incidentally, the Ostroms will be in the Poconos in July, renewing many of the acquaintances they fostered over the period Merle was GM at The Record.

Try and Stop Me

A judge out west shot a puzzled look at a stout lady being sworn in before him and asked, "Haven't you appeared as a witness in this suit before?" "I have not," retorted the stout lady indignantly. "Last time I had on my grey, pin-striped gubardine."

And in another court-room a district attorney dropped charges when the attorney for the defense marched his troupe of witnesses into view. "You won't catch me trying to win against that bunch of witnesses," said the D. A. "I've used them myself from time to time and they're the best!"

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, June 14 — The Senate Election Investigating Committee is being sounded out on keeping an official eye on the impending dynamite-loaded senatorial primary battle between "Ted" Kennedy, 30-year-old brother of the President, and Massachusetts Attorney General Edward McCormack.

The Committee, headed by Senator Howard Cannon, D-Nev., has authority to investigate this primary. Whether it will do so remains to be seen. The other committee members are Senators Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Carl Curtis, R-Neb.

Basis of the significant backstage move for a Senate probe is a flurry of sensational charges by McCormack and his backers that "White House pressure" was extensively used to win the endorsement of the state Democratic convention for young Kennedy's senatorial ambitions. McCormack had confidently

The Allen-Scott Report

Committee Watches Massachusetts Election

predicted he would win the convention's approval, but was overwhelmed by a surprise Kennedy landslide.

Foremost among the bitter charges of "White House pressure" were:

That more than 50 postmaster-ships were unfilled so they could be dangled as prizes for delegates' support; that certain leading delegates were threatened with income tax probes, were allegedly intimidated, and that members of the White House staff and other government agencies campaigned for "Ted."

Among those cited as doing the latter were Richard Donahue, White House assistant, and William Hartigan, a Postoffice official, who resigned his job to work for young Kennedy. Also active were Warren O'Donnell, brother of Kennedy O'Donnell, special assistant to the President, and Milton Gwirtzman, administrative assistant of Senator Ben Smith, classmate of the President, who was appointed to his Senate seat following his election to the White House.

Advisers of Attorney General McCormack are strongly urging that the Senate investigators be formally requested to keep a close check on this primary fight.

McCormack's managers are stressing this on the ground his young, multimillionaire rival can be expected to spend freely. He is credited with having done that in the convention battle. In that fray, it is claimed his payroll and other expenses exceeded $25,000 a week.

Mrs. Rose Kennedy, 70-year-old mother of the candidate, already has lined up numerous speaking engagements and "teas" to electioneer for him. In this state wide campaigning, she will be accompanied by her sisters and sisters-in-law — all socially prominent and White House intimates.

For Mrs. Kennedy and "the girls" this is an old experience. They did it in all the President's races, starting with his successful bid for the House of Representatives in 1946.

Also, as in the convention clash, young Kennedy's campaign will be managed by Stephen Smith, brother-in-law of the President, who gave up a State Department job early this spring to take charge of family business affairs because of the illness of former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy.

Helpful Friend (?) — Governor Gaylord Nelson's campaign to unseat Wisconsin's veteran Republican Senator Alexander Wiley is getting little help from Proxmire. When asked by Nelson's friends to head a fund-raising dinner in Washington, Proxmire reportedly claimed he was too busy with legislative affairs. So the friends turned to Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., who readily agreed to sponsor a $25-a-plate fundraising dinner for Nelson. Sputtering Democratic politicians are now watching how many tickets Proxmire will buy — if any!

Democratic National chairman John Bailey is greatly concerned over a growing storm of opposition against Nevada's bumbling Governor Grant Sawyer. His foot-in-mouth and other antics have so antagonized influential party leaders that a scorching primary fight against him is virtually certain. In contrast to the widespread ire against Sawyer, the party is strongly united behind Senator Alan Bible's bid for a second full term. He is assured of re-nomination by an overwhelming vote.

A bipartisan presentation has scored a big hit for one of Idaho's world-famous products — its unsurpassed potatoes. Thanks to the joint courtship of Idaho's Senators Henry Ipovorshak, R., and Frank Church, D., every member of the Senate received a 10-lb sack of giant Idaho potatoes. They so impressed Senator Gale McGee, D-Wyo., that he wrote the two solons, "The potatoes looked so wonderful I'm not sure whether we should eat them or frame them." . . . A biography is being written of former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, D-Mont., one-time militant liberal who wound up his political career a bitter New Deal foe and leading isolationist. Now 80 and practicing corporation law, Wheeler says he is still a Democrat, but he supported Eisenhower and is critical of the Kennedy regime.

Representative George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Space Committee, is getting an honorary degree on the 50th anniversary of his graduation from St. Mary's College . . . Senator Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the Anti-Trust Investigating Committee, is girding for a possible new clash with the steel industry. A report he requested on the average cost-per-ton of steel production is two months overdue. The study was to have been submitted by April 15, but when it wasn't forthcoming Kefauver granted a 30-day extension. Now he has learned the report still isn't completed, and he has told other committee-men, "It looks like we're getting a run-around." . . . Representative Sidney Yates, D-Ill., is being highly lauded by veterans' organizations for his fight to increase the appropriation for prosthetic research. Yates was one of the authors of this measure for amputees and other disabled veterans, and has consistently supported it for more than a decade. Veterans' organizations rate him as top champion of legislation for the development of improved artificial limbs and other prosthetic devices.

Stroud Union OKs Budget

STROUD Union School Board voted last night to approve the $1,562,174.27 budget for the school year of 1962-63. The vote was five in favor and one against.

Those voting in favor of its passage were Mrs. Ruth Hauer, Dr. John Lim, Clyde Hahn Jr., Robert Harvey and Robert Hellmann. Voting against its passage was John Baymor. Mrs. Sophie Stulgaitis was not present for the meeting.

The vote was taken after a letter was read from Herbert Chane, school board auditor. The letter stated that he has completed a survey as requested and found, "the present cash balance of $15,000 will be increased through local tax receipts and tuition by approximately $5,000 which will provide a cash available total of $20,000."

The payroll of June 12 is $74,587.33. Sufficient funds will have to be borrowed against the revolving credit line to meet this payroll. In addition the general bills to be paid this month are $22,820 and it appears that a deficit at the end of the 1961-62 school fiscal year will be $77,000."

"As Amended"
The budget was passed "as amended." In the process of getting the proposed budget into order for passage several amounts were transferred from one item to another all within the budget and none affecting the total amount of the budget.

When the shifting of funds were completed $77,955.18 were allotted to debt service. This amount is more than the deficit.

Levy 39 Mill Tax
With the passage of the budget came the levying of a 39 mill tax on real estate, $5 per capita tax as authorized by the School Code, $5 per capita tax under Act 481, "the tax anything law," and a 38-mill occupation tax, also authorized by Act 481, the "tax anything law." Following the reading of the resolutions for the $5 per capita tax, under Act 481, Harvey asked Attorney Arlington Williams "Who has jurisdiction or who polices the assessors in the various townships and other political subdivisions?"

Atty. Williams replied, "In my opinion they are supervised by the county commissioners." The reason for the question was to establish the legal procedure to place taxable persons on the tax duplicate. Persons who have become 21 years of age and not reported the fact to the assessors, tax collectors or school board. It also applies to persons residing within the school district and are not listed in the duplicate.

Forecast Cool Weather Until Sunday

COOL weather is in prospect the remainder of the week and over the weekend, an advance forecast by local weather observers show.

The forecasters said temperatures will average 2 to 5 degrees below normal. Showers are likely Sunday.

Showers which had been expected to end last night continued into today as a cold front became stationary south of this area.

Cloudy conditions will continue today. The mercury isn't expected to hit yesterday's 67 degrees but may hit 75 today.

Since the showery period developed Monday, there has been 38 of an inch precipitation. This is helping to alleviate effects of a two-month drought which has been a serious jolt to Monroe County farmers.

PM Board Accepts Blacktopping Bid

SWIFTWATER — A bid of $1,771.65 for blacktopping the parking area of Barrett Elementary Center was approved last night by the Pocono Mountain Joint School Committee. It also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Marilyn Butz, elementary school teacher. In accepting the resignation, the group heard a recommendation from James Davenport, elementary supervisor, that she receive top priority in re-hiring as she is considered an excellent teacher.

Electrical work for the various elementary schools will be done on the basis of low bid by the Johnson Electric Co. for a total of $1,941.

Two students who are at present attending Stroud Union High School, registered in the accelerated class, requested to be allowed to continue at that school and have Pocono Mountain Joint pay tuition for them.

Judith Headrick and Carol Manieri, have been taking advanced courses at Stroud Union which at present are not offered in the curriculum at Pocono Joint. The matter was referred to the policy and personnel committee for further investigation.

Sewage Problem
A sewage problem in relation to handling the waste from the Coolbaugh Elementary Center kitchen was deferred, pending investigation and recommendation by the building and grounds committee and further information from plumbers.

Bids were authorized to be submitted by contractors for bleachers on the athletic field. A slope is to be the site for the 500 or 1,000 seating capacity bleachers which would have no enclosed space beneath.

The committee authorized David E. Nelson, secretary, to pay bills prior to July 1, rather than hold them for the next meeting for action. The move was made as in previous years, to facilitate balancing the budget on July 1.

A 21 inch rotary power mower will be purchased for the bid price of $38 from Rodenbach, to be used in mowing areas adjacent to the parking lot and sections where the larger mowers are unable to reach.

The financial report listed a total of $47,494.92 in all funds as of June 1. The total bills approved was $10,718.58.

A minority report from the budget and finance committee was approved point by point and in its entirety. The recommendations were to transfer funds from one portion of the budget to another, in order to cover sections where there had been overdrafts and to place receipts in proper areas.

A letter was received from Stout Laboratories stating the high school water supply was tested and found free of coliform bacteria. The test is made periodically in accordance with Pennsylvania State law which requires that the safety of the water be established.

Discussion was held in relation to paying the full salary of retiring teacher, Miss Fannie Meluish. The Committee returned the recommendation to policy and personnel pending further information from legal council, with the stipulation that it be paid July 1 if it were not possible to do so prior to that date.

A resume of copies of letters from L. P. Koonen Associates was given by David Nelson. He explained that there was no action required by the committee inasmuch as the authority was the recipient of the letters.

It was reported an inspection of the remainder of work to be done on the plumbing system would be done by subcontractor, C. J. Vogt and Son, Mountainhome.

Art Display Of Prophets Impressive In Color, Size

By PAT WILLIAMS
Daily Record Reporter
BUCK HILL FALLS — The basis for all Judeo-Christian belief is found in the Old Testament. The books were written by men called prophets. They were often ignored by the very people they tried to warn and aid, but their stature as writers hasn't dimmed to the present day.

Using this stature in another way, Jacques Barosin has turned out one of the most impressive, if not the most impressive, and important works based on 18 Old Testament prophets. The display of his work is hanging in the east alcove of the main lobby at The Inn, Buck Hill Falls. It is easy to miss only if the person mounting the stairs has his or her eyes closed. The panels, each depicting one of the prophets, are three by eight feet, and they are not pictures of wizened, bent, sterile old men.

Each full length portrait is painted in particularly brilliant, living colors of a man seven feet tall. The perspective is such that the viewer not only looks up to the seven-foot man as the portrait is hanging on the wall, but also by the manner in which Barosin has done the painting.

Could Walk Out
To see one of the prophets step out of the frame from the canvas to which he has been imprisoned by oils doesn't seem at all fantastic. The force of personality captured by the artist makes the two-dimensional picture have a depth that is astonishing.

To miss this exhibit is to be condemned to a flat acceptance of second-best. The term "still life" could not apply to this collection of heroic art.

Barosin, born in Latvia, was educated in Germany, where he majored in art. The years between 1940 and 1943, he spent in a German forced labor camp in the south of France. When he escaped, he and his wife hid first in southern France and then in Paris. They were liberated in 1944.

A major portion of Barosin's work has been done in the field of religious art. He and his wife live in Kew Gardens, Long Island.

Open To Public
The exhibition, open to the public and free of charge, opened Saturday under the auspices of the board of education and the general synod of the Reformed Church in America. The paintings will continue to be displayed until Friday.

Isaiah, who prophesied that war would be no more, is the first of the series with Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Amos and Obadiah, ranged with him on the wall.

Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah and Hagzal, are located just around the corner with spotlights to heighten the visual impact.

Zachariah, Malachi, Nehemiah and Ezra are also done in the same manner.

Striking
One of the striking portraits is that of Daniel. Scenes from his writings adorn the background; the handwriting on the wall, the four strange beasts, the idol with feet of clay and the lion's den.

The beauty, color and detail of the paintings were produced in 18 months. Barosin has also done "The Life of Christ", which is not included in the exhibit. In that series, he used water color painting to form the 75 scenes.

The recommendation of this exhibit by laymen is the highest praise which can possibly be offered.

Stroud Firemen Answer Call

STROUD Township volunteer firemen were called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lesoine, Mt. Zion, at 10:05 a.m. yesterday.

Chief Lester Rice said a plastic pan caught fire when Mrs. Lesoine lighted a basement gas oven. There was no damage and volunteers used a fan to clear the smoke away.

Local Girl To Attend Water School

MISS Gwendolyn Schiebel, Stroudsburg, RD., will be one of more than 100 young men and women who will attend the American Red Cross National Aquatic School at Millford, Pa., it was announced yesterday by George Ockershausen, Water Safety Chairman of the Monroe County Red Cross Chapter.

The Camp Indian Trails Aquatic School is one of 26 ten-day training sessions sponsored by the Red Cross throughout the United States this summer. Since the schools began in 1922, total enrollment, including 1962, has reached nearly 80,000.

The schools are held at established summer camps before or after the regular camping season. Their purpose is to increase the number of qualified instructors in swimming, lifesaving, boat safety, and first aid. It is hoped that students will participate in Red Cross chapter safety programs and serve as swimming and water-front directors at summer camps, beaches, and pools.

In each Red Cross geographic area at least one school will be devoted especially to boat safety in recognition of the fact that boating in recent years has become the nation's largest and most popular family participation sport.

The faculties for these famed schools are made up of volunteers who are experts in their various fields: school and college coaches, well-known athletes, and trained Red Cross staff members.

2 Collies Missing

DR. DAVID Schulman, Little Kunkletown, reported to The Daily Record that two collie dogs either strayed away from his home or were stolen while he was on a recent vacation.

He said that he lost one collie last year while on vacation, and added, "It's not so much the dogs being gone but they were the children's pets."

If anyone knows the whereabouts of the dogs would they please contact him," he urged.

Kresgeville

Mrs. W. E. Andrews

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Kunkle, Allentown, spent the weekend with her sister's family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zacharias.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herman, daughter Shirley, Bloomfield, N. J., and George Smith, Palmerton, called on Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kreimoyer Sunday.

Mary Garden Sings Again

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — Mary Garden—one of the world's great opera stars of the past—has sung again.

Now 85, and recovering from a fall in which she broke both arms, she sang to what must have been one of her most unusual audiences.

Seated in a chair, the soprano with the golden voice sang to patients, nurses and doctors packed into a ward of Aberdeen's Royal Infirmary.

"It's the first time I've sung in public for many, many years," she said.

Her song was the beautiful old Scottish ballad, "Annie Laurie."

Her performance was on Monday but the story just leaked out.

Miss Garden was born in Aberdeen Feb. 20, 1877. At the age of 6 she was taken to New York by her family. The family eventually settled in Chicago where she received her early training.

Court Upholds Assault Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The state Superior Court Wednesday upheld the conviction of E. Newbold Smith, former Navy star athlete, for assault and battery on Police Chief Frank Elliott of Thornbury Township, Chester County.

The court, in a decision written by Judge G. Harold Watkins, denied Smith's contention he had not received a fair trial in Chester County Quarter Sessions Court.

Smith faces a fine of $1,000 and 30 days imprisonment for the 1960 altercation. He was convicted of beating Elliott after the latter stopped his automobile near the intersection of Route 202 and 926. Elliott stopped Smith for crossing a medial strip.

State Police Probe Entry

STATE police here are investigating a burglary at Elsie's Lunch, Saylorsburg, RD., in which more than $7 in tax receipts, ice cream and cigars were taken.

Mrs. Elsie Miller, 436 Pennsylvania Ave., Bangor, operator, told police the theft occurred sometime late Monday night or early Tuesday morning. Entrance was made through a lavatory window.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There are certain combinations in which each ingredient adds to the satisfaction of the other. What those combinations are depends upon individual tastes, but everybody seems to have them.

Apple butter and cottage cheese, peanut butter and jelly, a new hat and a place to wear it, a rainy day and a bridge luncheon all are combinations which complement each other for me.

Especially that rainy day deal. Somebody else's house all cleaned and shiny, bright with lights and flowers, festive food and fellow guests seems even more so against the gray curtain of the rain, adding to the comfort of being included in the magic circle instead of left by your lorn outside.

Besides, it's much easier on the conscience than a bright and shiny day when you might well be putting your time to more energetic use like cleaning windows or cutting back the June rosebushes, which obviously is impossible in the rain.

You probably have your own favorite combinations. A new book and a dog to warm your feet by on a cold night; a full moon the night of a dance; an ice cream cone on a hot afternoon; songs around a campfire on a summer night; the sound of children playing outside at dusk.

My own very unfavorable combination is waking much too early and having a subconscious worry pounce like a cat, gnawing your mind, tossing it, worrying it like a frantic mouse.

In the queer crepusculence of early dawn logic has no place. So it's foolish to worry about a son who is on his way home for a wedding when he might very well be on his way to Viet Nam, but mothers are foolish anyway.

Somehow they like to be able to place their children in time and space, as if knowing where they were when somehow kept them safe.

Patriotic Camp Banquet

Kresgeville — The annual banquet of Camp 245, Patriotic Order of Americans will be held Friday night at 6:30 in the West End Firehall, Brodheadville. Jennie Odam, president will be in charge of the meeting. Raymond Andrews of the Pleasant Valley High School faculty will be the speaker, giving a short address on local history.

Never realized it before, but Jerry Rubin (Phyllis' husband) is quite a magician. What's more he has a magic wand and a hat box full of tricks to prove it, along with a special lingo all his own. Jerry's magic word is not a mere "abracadabra," however—it's a new word that will work magic for all the women who will soon be using it, and you pronounce it "fabric-adabra" with emphasis on "fabric" and "bra."

A great deal of research has gone into the presentation of Jerry's show, and it began months and months ago when the United States government, through its agriculture department, started working with Exquisite Form scientists on a new, improved type of cotton. It seems the cotton market had been rather hard hit by the appearance of so many man-made "miracle fibers" . . . yet no fiber ever conceived in a test tube is quite so absorbent or practical as the natural cotton God has given us. Intensive research finally produced a "giveable" cotton which is so so amazing you must see it to believe it. I DO believe it, for I saw Jerry produce a candle, with a tap of the wand, from his magic box.

That square of cotton was really "fabricadabra" — simply out of this world, it's so incredible. Placing it upon a table he stretched it this way . . . and that way . . . and the hanky-like square actually grew before my eyes. 20% giveability, Jerry claims for it, and I don't doubt for a minute that he's being completely honest. What's more it's soft . . . as soft as the tissue you pray for when your nose is sore from hayfever; as soft as the diaper a tender-hearted mother desires for her baby. As soft as a cloud, or, at least, as one imagines a cloud to be. As weightless too, Jerry says it's "feather-light," and he's not far wrong, for when you dangle this embroidered, bow-trimmed fra from your hand you are hardly aware you are holding anything. This is marvelous . . . not just because we women hate to wear clothes that bind and restrict us, but because when we travel we have suitcases full of apparel to carry, plus extra charges to pay for excessive luggage. The toll can be pretty high on the disposition and the budget when one's packing has been unwise.

Jerry swears these Exquisite Form bras are so giveable that size 34 will conform to a size 36 figure easily and comfortably, yet will return to its original size and shape the moment it is removed. Not, of course, that there is any reason to buy a smaller size than one desires, for the range is terrific: 32 to 36A; 32 to 40B; and 32 to 42C and D.

Because it is impractical to stitch stretchable fabric with unstretchable thread, a special helanca thread is used, and instead of elastic the back band is of Spandex, which never seems to lose its elasticity and will never discolor because it does not contain one bit of rubber. The bra cups are designed so that they will "give" vertically, while the back of the bra "gives" horizontally. Here's another thing . . . Exquisite Form knows that every woman (even those who wear the same size bra) differs in build from other women. However, the natural heat of the body actually molds this new Fabricadabra to the individual form and makes it truly one's own "custom-made" garment. There will never be such problems as gapping under the arms, for instance . . . and no restricting of movements. On the larger sizes, the Spandex band at the back is wide and straight; on the narrower bras, French-type criss-cross bands are used. In addition to all this the bra is drip dry . . . machine washable with zero shrinkage . . . and customers who have pre-tested it love the "soft, unbound feeling" of wearing it.

I suppose you have several questions: is it longline or not? At the present it is not, but longline will be available very soon. Can you buy it today? No. It will be here in about 4 weeks, and the fabric will be exclusive with Exquisite Form for one year. Is it expensive? NO . . . it costs only 2.95. And have I told you my story accurately? I think so . . . this is a wonderful bra, eve into its new slim, weightless, chrome-coated package with the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval. Wait and see!

On Day Before Open

Rain Helps Palmer's Odds

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — A drenching rain dented the odds of a lightning bolt striking Arnold Palmer's stock skyrocketed Wednesday on the eve of the 62nd National Open Golf Championship.

"It's a break for the big hitter and the gambler—and that means Palmer," host pro Lew Worsham said after an early morning down-pour forced cancellation of final practice rounds over the Oakmont Country Club. "The course will play longer but a man will be able to gun for the pin."

Bold, gambling golf is the trademark of the bronzed 32-year-old professional from nearby Latrobe, Pa., who is a 5-1 favorite to make the Open the second triumph in his bid for a professional "grand slam," which includes the Masters, British Open and U.S. PGA titles.

Palmer already has the Masters, one of his six tournament conquests in a potential record-breaking financial year, and he will go after the British and PGA next month in the space of three weeks.

Although 150 of the world's finest golfers tee off Thursday in the sport's toughest tournament, the event has evolved into a personal knock-down battle between Palmer, the game's fiercest competitor, and Oakmont, irreverently tabbed the "Hades of Hulton" after a road that runs nearby.

This is the fourth Open that has been held on these rolling hills in the Pennsylvania steel country and so far only one man—Ben Hogan, the 1953 winner—has beaten its par for the 72-hole route, and only two, Hogan and Sam Snead, have broken 290. Hogan won the fourth of his Open crowns at the peak of his career with a 283 nine years ago and Snead finished six strokes behind at 289.

Since then par for the 6,894-yard layout has been reduced from 72 to 71 with a change in the 455-yard first hole. But 208 strategically placed traps, wiry rough and greens so fast they putt like table tops make Oakmont as rugged and gruesome an antagonist as she ever was.

Many competitors, after wrestling with the tenacious rough and the lightning, frustrating greens in practice, have predicted that a score of 290 may be good enough to win.

"I don't think so," said Palmer. "I've said before that I think 275 will win it, and I still think so."

"I don't believe the rain has given me an advantage. I liked the greens as they were—hard and fast. I think they're the finest greens I've ever seen. The rain will make the rough tougher and it will mean that the greens will be chopped up for the late starters."

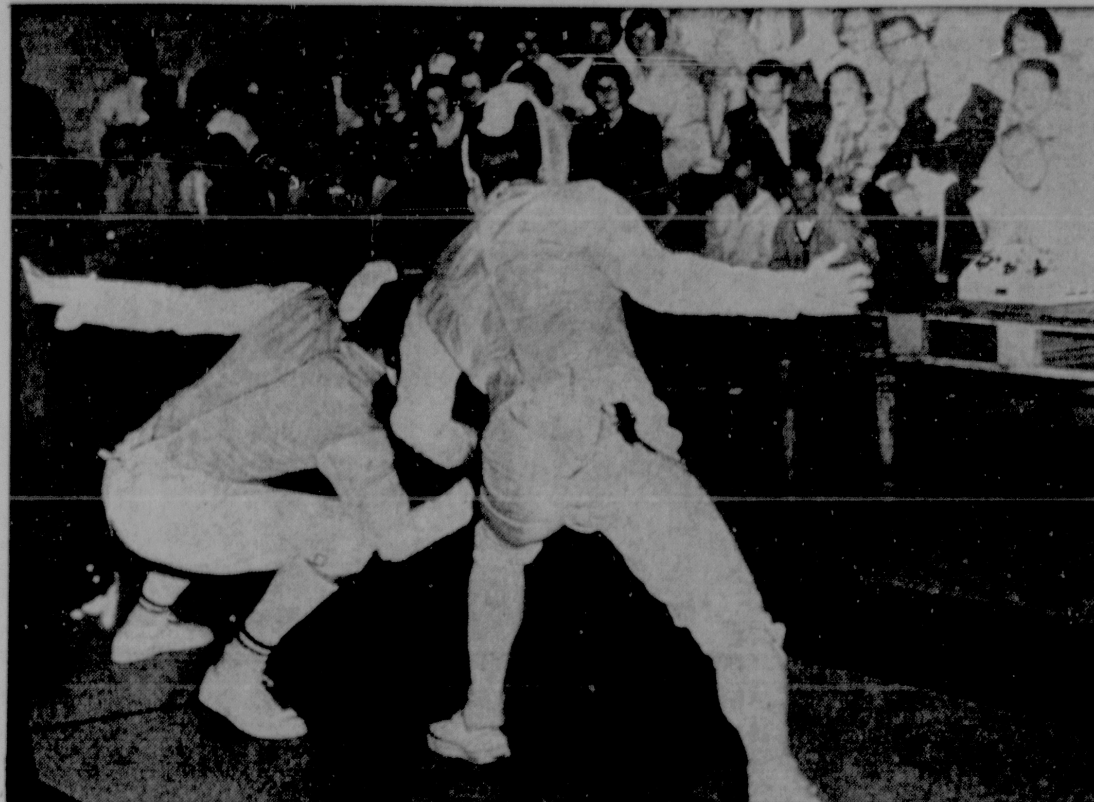

Palmer pulled the last stitch of the ring finger of his right hand, which he split open in a freak accident earlier this week, and said: "It doesn't bother me. Personally, I feel great. Never better."

Palmer's starting time Thursday is 12 noon (EST), paired with one of his most dangerous rivals, 22-year-old Jack Nicklaus, the former National Amateur champion and rookie pro.

The defending champion, Gene Littler of San Diego, Calif., still keyed up from his $25,000 first prize victory in the $100,000 Golf Classic in Clifton, N.J., last week, is an early starter on the first day. He tees off with Mike Souchak at 9 a.m. (EST).

Dick Whitely of Pikesville, Md., is the first man on the tee at 6 a.m. (EST). The last man off is Bill Johnston of Phoenix, Ariz., at 2:24 p.m.

In between are America's best golfers, pro and amateur, remnants of an original field of more than 2,500, plus such outstanding foreign threats as Gary Player of South Africa, Bruce Crampton of Australia and Stan Leonard and Al Balding of Canada. Britain's Ted Ray was the last foreigner to win—back in 1920.

FENCING MASTERS — Two members of the fencing conclave now in progress for candidates for the 1964 Olympic fencing team give an exhibition of skill before a public group last night in the gym of East Stroudsburg State College. During the afternoon they performed before the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club in the Penn-Stroud.

Former ESSC Clinic Coach Dies In Pgh.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Art Lewis, a Pittsburgh Steelers scout and former head football coach of West Virginia University, died in a hospital Wednesday night, nine days after suffering a heart attack.

Lewis, 51, died in St. Clair Memorial Hospital where he had been listed in critical condition since he was hospitalized on June 4.

Schwall Blanks Birds For 2nd Bosox Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Don Schwall blanked Baltimore with two hits Wednesday night as the Boston right-hander defeated the Orioles 4-0.

The 1961 American League rookie of the year had won only once in eight previous decisions this season but had his sinking ball and the control working once again.

Jackie Brandt doubled with two out in the fourth and Whitey Herzog singled after two were out in the seventh against Schwall. The game was played in a constant, drizzling rain.

Frank Malzone and Ed Bresoud singled for the Red Sox runs while both Bob Tillman and Carl Yastrzemski contributed sacrifice flies.

Billy Gardner, playing only his second game for the Red Sox since he was acquired from the Yankees, had a double, single, walked and scored twice.

Weather Foils Swim

ALGECIRAS, Spain (AP) — Bad weather prevented long distance swimmer Mary Margaret Revel 24, of Detroit from attempting to swim the Gibraltar Straits both ways Wednesday.

During the non-basketball sessions—eating, sleeping, etc. From dawn to lights out discipline is the theme.

Litwack, the coach who is so highly regarded by Temple authorities that he was recently named a full professor at the Philadelphia university, argues that something ought to be done about keeping such basketball camps alive.

But Foster laments, "What will happen to basketball in Pennsylvania if the right to educate those who want to be educated is denied?"

The Bloomsburg coach answered his own question with "The rest of the 50 states where no such regulation is in force will take the lead in the sport. Up to now we (Keystone State) have been doing pretty good. Later, I don't know."

Locals Represented — East Stroudsburg, Stroud Union and Pleasant Valley High are represented at Foster's camp. Some of the boys have varsity experience while others are learning the small tricks that will help them gain regular spots in the future.

Sun Mountain is a strict camp. Everything is done practically by the whistle. Regimentation prevails from morning to night. With more than 100 boys under his command, Foster appoints qualified counselors (college students) to take charge men with the qualities a boy can look up to. We don't select the type of individual we feel will in any way hinder a youth's progress to be a good citizen.

From the looks of this year's staff, Foster has the pick of the best—with years of basketball experience and excellent educational backgrounds.

Famous Tutors — Among his tutors are Tom Gola, former La Salle All-American and present Philadelphia Warriors ace (San Francisco is his next stop); Forry Anderson, Michigan State's excellent hardwood boss; Johnny Bach, the Fordham coach the metropolitan writers figure does the most with a limited supply of material; George Hunter, Army developer of lieutenants; Bud Millikin, Maryland's molder of champions in the Atlantic Conference; Gene Shue, ex-Maryland great who went on to greater glory with the Detroit Pistons; Jack (The Shot) Foley, Holy Cross America who was a honor student at the Worcester, Mass. college; and John Havlicek, the Ohio State basketball whiz who yesterday signed a professional contract with the Cleveland Browns despite having not played a minute for the Buckeye grid collegians.

Foster feels it is unfair to the parents and the boys themselves to deprive the schoolboys the privilege of learning more about basketball.

"Heck, we teach study habits too, with our diagrams and notebook," he noted.

"Our program is designed to teach the individual the fundamental points of the game—defense, passing, shooting and dribbling," he pointed out.

"Don't get us wrong, we are not attempting to mold a prima

SHAWNEE—Unless the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association has a change of heart, the Pocono Mountains will be among many other spots in the Keystone State to see the last of summer basketball camps this year.

The PIAA has ruled that schoolboy summer camps are out if a boy is to be eligible for the following season at his respective school.

To be scuttled in this area is Sun Mountain Basketball Camp, owned by Temples famous court coach, Harry Litwack, and directed by Bill Foster, Bloomsburg State College basketball mentor.

Sun Mountain, only a few miles from Shawnee, has been running only a few years under Foster's and Litwack's guidance. But the camp has grown to the point that it's rated one of the best in the nation.

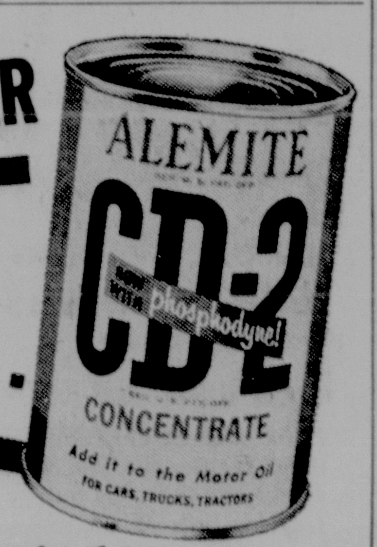

Foster, considered one of the brightest young coaches in the national ranks, sees the PIAA ruling actually a detriment to basketball.

He said, "I know the PIAA scoffs at team drills such as are used in some parts of our commonwealth. I don't blame them for this either. But here at Sun Mountain we stress individual play."

The crewcut graduate of Elizabethtown and Temple went on to explain:

"This is more than just a basketball camp. We feature conditioning (just what President Kennedy wants), mental alertness, study habits, and other requisites to set up a boy for college admission.

"Our staff is decorated with

Cleveland, Senators Split In Twi-Nighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dick Donovan ended the five-game winning streak of the Washington Senators, his former teammates, Wednesday night when the Cleveland Indians won the second game of a two-night doubleheader 4-1 after losing the opener 4-2.

John Romano's three-run homer in the fourth inning was enough batting support for Donovan who won his ninth game. Romano's homer off Dave Stenhouse followed a single by Tito Francona off Ken Hamlin's chest, and an error by Hamlin on Willie Kirkland's pop.

Claude Osteen, the Senators' 22-year-old southpaw, won his third straight in the opener before hind home runs by Ken Retzer and Joe Hicks and two unearned runs. Steve Hamilton saved the victory for Osteen.

Donovan allowed six hits, but two were pop-fly doubles and two were of the infield variety. He fanned four and walked only one.

Osteen strained his back on a throw to first in the eighth inning of the opener and was relieved by Hamilton with one out and one on. Two runners reached base against Hamilton on an error and walk, but they were wiped out by double plays.

Chicago's fourth run in the eighth on Don Landrum's single before Face was called into make his 23rd appearance of the season.

Chicago's 4-1 victory was a 6-4 conquest of the Chicago Cubs.

The right-hander retired four straight Cubs to assure Alvin McBean his sixth victory in nine decisions.

The Pirates, who earlier linked together win streaks of 10 and seven in a row, put the game on ice in the sixth with a three-run romp against loser Cal Koonce.

Don Hoak opened with a walk and went to third on Bill Mazeroski's double.

Bill Virdon followed with his third homer, a drive into the right field bleachers, to break a 2-2 deadlock.

The Pirates, beating the Cubs a sixth time in seven games, added an insurance run in the ninth off Don Cardwell. It was Cardwell's first 1962 relief appearance.

Billy Williams, the Cubs' outfielder, collected three straight hits after a first inning walk to pad his batting average nine points in a climb to .345. The second Williams hit was his 12th homer, in the sixth. He also scored Chicago's fourth run in the eighth on Don Landrum's single before Face was called into make his 23rd appearance of the season.

Mullins To Chair Titan Tix Group

JACK MULLINS, local insurance agent, has been named chairman of the ticket committee for the forthcoming N. Y. Titan Professional football games.

The games, sponsored by Rotary Charities for the General Hospital Expansion Fund, will be played at East Stroudsburg Memorial Stadium on July 21 and 27.

Mullins, long active in various local sports programs and leagues, will be fully responsible for all ticket pre-game and gate sales, distribution, reserved seats and group sales.

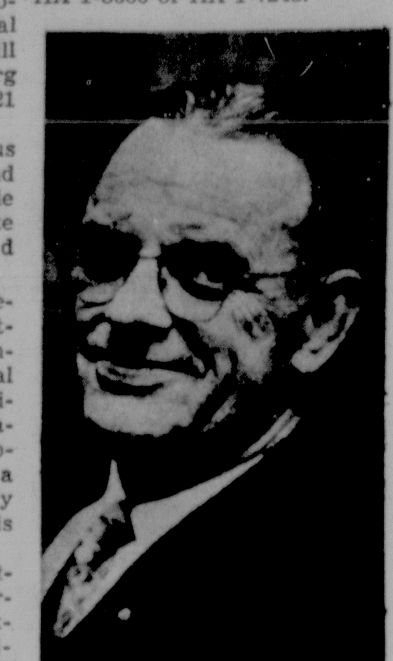

As chairman, Mullins will report to the Executive Committee on the progress of his committee members from the local Rotary Club, who will work directly under him in the operation of the entire ticket promotion and sale. In addition, a member of the Monroe County Medical Society will serve on his group.

In announcing the appointment of Mullins, the co-chairman of the Rotary Charities Executive Committee, Ward Keiper, and Marty Baldwin said, "These games will give the people of the Poconos a two-fold reason for turning out. They'll be able to make a collective and public appearance in support of the hospital expansion program."

Keiper and Baldwin further stated, "In addition, football fans will see two ruggedly fought gridiron battles as each member of the Titan squad fights desperately to make the 1962 team."

Mullins will soon announce where and when tickets for the games go on sale. Reserved seats will go for $3.00, general admission for $2.00 and student tickets will be priced at $1.00. People interested in group purchases should call Mullins at HA 1-3666 or HA 1-7243.

All-Round Athlete Havlicek Signs NFL Football Pact

CLEVELAND (AP) — John (Hondo) Havlicek, who captained Ohio State's basketball team last season, signed a contract Wednesday to play for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Championship clubs of two professional basketball leagues — the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association, and the Cleveland Pipers of the American Basketball League — had drafted Havlicek and had tried to sign him.

The Browns said that four major league baseball teams also were interested in the 22-year-old, 6-foot-5, athlete — the Cleveland Indians and the New York Yankees of the American League and the Philadelphia Phils and Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

Coach Paul Brown said he was delighted that Havlicek chose to play football and was considering working him into a flanking half-back spot—a position now held by Ray Renfro — or possibly as a safety man.

Havlicek played first base for Ohio State's baseball team, in addition to starring there in basketball. But he did not play any football with the Bucks. His last football was a T-quarterback for Bridgeport High School, where he won all-state honors.

"The boy has great hands and fine speed and good coordination," said Brown, who has seen Havlicek in workouts. "In addition he is quick mentally and there's little doubt in my mind that he has all the equipment to become a fine professional football player."

Davis To Run In USAC 100-Miler At Langhorne

DON Davis is the third Arizona ace to enter the 25th running of the 100-mile National championship scheduled for the Langhorne Speedway on June 24. Previously, Roger McCluskey and Bill Ches-bour, both of Tucson, submitted entries for the USAC Sanctioned race at the 'Horne.

Davis, piloting the Roes Trucking Lines Special, was one of four drivers to break the record in the 1962 Memorial Day '500. This was his second effort in the Hoosier event.

State Athletes In NCAA Sports

FOUR PENN STATE athletes will compete in national intercollegiate championship action beginning this weekend.

Long-distance specialists Gerry Norman and Steve Moorhead will compete in the NCAA track and field championships to be held Friday and Saturday at the University of Oregon.

Jim Tabor and Dave Liebau will enter the national golf championships slated to begin this weekend on the Duke University course.

Norman will enter the three-mile run and Moorhead will compete in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. Norman placed third with a time of 13:47.7 in last year's NCAA three-mile run at Penn's Franklin Field. His best time this season was a winning 14:03.8 in the Ohio Relays form.

Kiwanis program chairman Ed Krawitz introduced his college fencing coach, Lajos Csizsar, Csizsar was the former U. S. Olympic coach, and is the fencing coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Penn mentor gave several exhibitions of work with the three weapons—foil, sabre, and epee.

In addition to the exhibitions by the coach, the participants in the fencing camp engaged in actual bouts. During these demonstrations of electrically controlled weapons were given.

The electrical weapon is a foil with a sensitive tip. A cord is hooked around the body of the fencer and runs into a control box on the sidelines.

When an opponent is touched—which is the object of fencing—the sensitized tip sends an impulse to the control box. A light subsequently flashes on the box under the side of the man who made the touch, and is registered automatically.

Csizar came to this country in 1948 from Hungary. Ed Krawitz was his first student manager at Penn. In 1953, only four years after taking over as head coach, Csizar led his team to the NCAA championship.

The Olympic candidates have been training at ESSC for the past several weeks. The fencing camp will be concluded this weekend. The camp drew top fencers from over the Eastern seaboard.

His initial offering, in 1961, terminated in an accident. In the recent '500, Davis was in contention throughout the grind and when the checkered bunting dropped he, with a 139.78 MPH average, was riding in fourth position—the same lap as the winner. For his exceptional effort the 28-year-old Phoenix pilot collected $16,716 of the record purse.

The Arizona ace commenced his racing career via the roadsters in 1950. He is equally adept at piloting the midge and sprints as he is in the Indianapolis pols mounts. Davis registered a fair performance in the 1961 event at the 'Horne. He will be driving the Rose Trucking Lines Special as he bids for his initial triumph in the 'Horne '100.

The Silver Anniversary has attracted a formidable field of the Nation's top professional pilots. USAC officials will stage qualifying trials immediately preceding the 100-mile title event to establish the field of eighteen who will go postward in the June 24 classic.

Blum Top Rider At Monmouth

OCEANPORT, N.J. — Monday, June 11 was the ninth day of the current Monmouth Park meeting. Jockey Walter Blum rode three winners on the card and took the lead in the jockeys race with a total of 12 victories against 9 for Steve Brooks and Sam Boulmetis.

It was appropriate that Blum take the lead on the ninth day of the meeting. Last season on Monday, June 19, which also was the ninth day of the meeting, Blum staged the top one-man show in the history of New Jersey racing. He won six races that afternoon, the best one-day record in the State.

Over the last five years, Blum has won more races at Monmouth Park than any other rider and the way he has started this season, indicates he intends to add to his total considerably. During that period Blum has won the riding title only once—in 1960. But he was second in the standings once and three times. During the five years Blum has rung up 228 winners at this track.

Race-trackers who follow the fortunes of jockeys are quick to say that a boy "rides like he owns this track" when he's in winning form.

The banquet will be held in the Penn-Stroud Hotel at 7 p. m. and will welcome the American Football League Titans to their football camp at East Stroudsburg State College.

The dinner will allow local fans a chance to meet the players, coaches, and officials of the New York squad.

Speedy Boy Favorite At Monticello

SPEEDY Boy, four-year-old son of the great Adios Boy, shoots for his third straight win at Monticello Raceway in the feature $1,400 Class B-2 Pace today.

Owner Arthur Koch will open from the No. 2 post with his promising star against a field of seven in the seventh race. Koch owns the Dapple-Gray Farms at Huntington, N.Y.

Speedy Boy paced to a 2:06 victory last week in Class C company and will be moving up. The early favorite won by two and one half lengths breezing. His other win at the Mighty M was in the mud.

Stiff competition is expected from Ned Calentine's Cimbee, along the rail, Knight Parade, with Howard Camden, and Miss Myrtle's First, with John Dill. The remainder of the field will be made up of Skywell, June First, Meadow Job, and Royal Domain.

Carmine Abbatiello's Jim Lynch, a good closer, also will be seeking its third win in a row in the $1,000 associate feature in the fifth race. The seven-year-old gelding twice has finished strongly to cop Class C-2 titles, the latest in 2:09.3.

Paige West's Adios Scarlet, from the pole, looms as the horse to beat, however. West, former trainer of the now retired champion Adios Butler, will be making his first driving start of the meeting at MR.

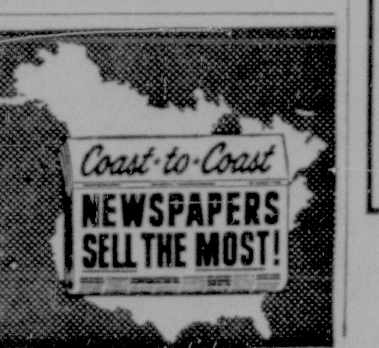

Other threats are Guess Again, Julie Abby and Ted Woolen. The Nevele Acres Stable of Ellenville will be represented in the daily double. Bill Popfinger will drive Nevele Baby in the first race and Nevele Duke in the second dash.

State Recaps Top Sports Of Year

PENN STATE'S third straight football bowl victory, the best lacrosse record since 1946, a once-beaten golf squad, and another post-season baseball appearance ranked as the top Nittany Lion athletic achievement for the 1961-62 academic year.

Coach Rip Engle's gridders defeated seven of 10 regular-season opponents enroute to their first Eastern championship since 1947. Victorious over Alabama and Oregon in the 1959 and 1960 Liberty Bowl, the Lions this time polished off Georgia Tech in the Gator Bowl.

First-year coach Dick Penck directed the Lion lacrosse-men to a 7-3 record, their best since Nick Thiel's 1946 team posted an identical mark.

Oriole Rookie A-OK

NEW YORK (AP) — John (Boog) Powell, Baltimore rookie who was beamed by left-hander Bud Daley of the New York Yankees Monday night, said he expects to leave the hospital within the next 24 hours.

"I'm ready to leave now," said the 6-foot-3, 225-pound outfielder, "but the doctors think I should undergo another checkup. I feel pretty good. I don't feel any after-effects."

Powell was brought to the hospital for X-rays and observation immediately after being hit on the head by a Daley pitch in the fourth inning of the game between the Orioles and Yankees.

A free-for-all almost resulted in the bottom half of the inning when a pitch by Robin Roberts sailed several feet over Roger Maris' head.

Did Powell think Daley had thrown at him deliberately? "I have no idea," he said. "It was a fast ball and I saw it coming but I couldn't get out of the way. I just found out there at the plate. It was the first time something like that ever happened to me."

"I never was unconscious," he said. "I felt dizzy and I had a headache but even before I got to the hospital I didn't think I was seriously hurt."

Now...Test drive the NEW 'JEEP' TORNADO-OHC ENGINE

You'll be amazed at its performance!

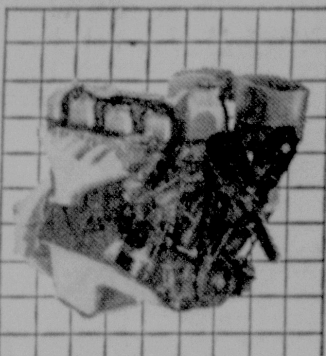

BIRTH OF A CHAMPION! Today, after years of research, development and testing, Willys Motors proudly presents the 'Jeep' Tornado-OHC—America's first overhead camshaft engine designed for commercial vehicles.

WHAT IS AN OHC ENGINE? In a pushrod engine the valves are on top—the camshaft, which operates them, is at the bottom. It's an awkward situation like playing the piano sitting on the floor—you have to stretch up and over to hit the keys. Giving the Tornado-OHC engine overhead cams—which is what the initials OHC stand for—is like giving the pianist a chair. You get much better performance.

LOADED OHC 'JEEP' VEHICLE PULLS LIKE IT'S EMPTY! 33% more power—and, more important, very high torque at very low engine speeds give the Tornado-OHC engine better acceleration and much longer life.

EASY GOING—ON GAS AND MAINTENANCE! Higher thermal efficiency means up to 25% better gas economy. Fewer moving parts mean simpler, less frequent, less expensive maintenance.

COME IN AND TEST DRIVE THE TORNADO-OHC ENGINE—now available in 'Jeep' Pick-ups, 4-wheel drive Utility Wagons, 2WD Station Wagons and Panel Deliveries. But be warned—with its exciting performance you'll probably want to take it home with you!

TV Comedian Will Star In 2nd Playhouse Offering

POCONO Playhouse in Mountaintown, will present the famous TV comedian, Hans Conried, in the New York comedy success, "Critic's Choice" as the second offering of its 14th week season beginning Monday, June 11 at 8:40 p.m.

Hans Conried

Conried has enjoyed a career spanning several theatrical media. He entered Hollywood radio in 1936 and followed through from second leads in John Barrymore's "streamlined Shakespeare" to his later and better recognition in lighter assignments. Thousands of radio listeners will remember his Professor Kropotkin with "My Friend Irma" and as Schultz in "Life With Luigi."

He has acted in over 90 motion pictures, including "Bus Stop," "Meet Me In Las Vegas," "Miracle on 34th Street" and others and made New York stage appearances in "Can Can" and "Student Prince."

More recently he has scored with his appearances in "Uncle Tooloose" in the Danny Thomas TV show.

"Critic's Choice," written by Ira Levin, is a jolly fiction aimed at the Press and the foibles of people in show business. It had close to a year's successful run on Broadway.

The play revolves around a prominent theatrical critic is put on the spot when assigned to review his beautiful wife's play. He knows it's a "turkey" and in making his decision whether to be perfectly honest in his review at the expense of his wife's feeling or to tell the truth and lose the peace, the harassed man bounces from one comic situation to another.

"Critic's Choice" will run through Saturday night, June 23, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Reservations may be made by calling LY 5-7456 or at Pocono Box offices in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Honesdale. Patrons residing in Bethlehem, Allentown, Easton and Phillipsburg may dial EN-terprise 1-0899 toll free

ROY W. TREXLER, supervisor of the Northeast Division of the Penna. Game Commission yesterday announced the names of 22 students who successfully completed the Hunter Safety Instructor course which was given at the Blue Ridge Cherry Valley Rod and Gun Club, Saylorsburg, last week.

The course was sponsored by the Physical Education Department of the East Stroudsburg

State College and the Penna. Game Commission. The eight-hour course of instruction included: Knowledge of Firearms and Ammunition, Proper Gun Handling, Home Gun Safety, Hunter's Responsibility, and the Fundamentals of Marksmanship which were given in the Club House.

The outdoor range was then utilized and instruction in firing rifles, revolvers and shotguns took place.

The students were members of the Outdoor Recreation Class of the summer session at the college.

Students who scored more than 90 percent in the final examination were Rose Colebert, Andrea Farris, Lana Karl, Carol Lane, Patricia Tross, Eileen Ward, Barbara McMullen, Cornelia C. Roche, Judy White, Mary Lou Sanders, Mary G.

The Daily Investor

Promissory Notes

By William A. Doyle
Q. I received a booklet through the mail, from a currency brokerage firm, advertising promissory notes. Do many firms borrow money this way? How safe are promissory notes? I was surprised to see that these promissory notes pay 5 1/2 percent interest for only three months. Doesn't that fantastic rate of interest indicate that these promissory notes are very risky investments?

A. Almost all companies borrow money through promissory notes, at one time or another. But most do their borrowing through banks or other lending agencies. Some, however, do offer their promissory notes to the general public.

The safety (more correctly the degree of risk) of each promissory note depends on the company which has issued it. If you read the booklet you received through the mail, you know that these notes are not guaranteed by any agency of the Federal government.

That's a big difference, for people who are accustomed to putting their money in interest-paying savings accounts.

The majority of companies which issue promissory notes to the public have excellent records of payment. But some must be considered downright risky.

Also, you seem to be confused about the total interest payments. The booklet you received and sent along does not advertise 5 1/2 percent interest, every three months. You may think that means 22 percent interest a year. It doesn't. The booklet states that the borrower (the company issuing the promissory notes) promises to pay interest at "the annual rate" of 5 1/2 percent a year. On a three-month basis, that interest amounts to 1.375 percent.

Q. The president of the company for which I work has offered to sell some of the stock he owns in the company to all full-time employees. None of this stock is for sale to the general public. The stock is not listed on any stock exchange and is not traded anywhere.

How will we employees know if it is worth buying and if we are buying it at a good price?

A. Boy! This is a real sticky situation.

The valuation of privately-owned stock in a closely-held corporation is never easy. You must look at the company's overall position — its competitive position with other companies in the same business, its profit and loss statement, its balance sheet and a number of other things.

Frankly, the ordinary investor can't do that.

If the president is offering to sell a reasonably large number of shares, the offering may involve a "distribution." This can get very complicated.

The employees would probably be wise to chip in some money and go to a security analyst at a brokerage house. Pay the analyst to evaluate the company and its stock. You may also run into some legal problems. In that case, chip in some more money to pay a good attorney.

This may make the president of your company unhappy. But, if you want to protect yourselves, it's about the only way you can even approach the problem.

The ordinary "guy on the street" simply has no way of judging the value of stock which has never before been offered for sale.

Q. I ordered 100 shares of stock through a New York City broker. The broker sent me two 50-share stock certificates, with the name of someone unknown to me printed on them. The certificates were endorsed by this unknown party. Can you explain this odd procedure?

A. Sure, you're dealing with a lazy and-or sloppy broker. Delivery of stock certificates, in this manner, is the way one broker normally delivers certificates to another broker. The person who sold the stock has either endorsed the certificate or has signed a "stock power." In either case, the seller's signature must be guaranteed by either a brokerage firm or a commercial bank.

Then, in the normal course of events, the buyer's broker (the broker who handled your order) sends the certificate to the transfer agent. The transfer agent cancels the old certificate, registers the buyer as the new owner of the shares on the company books and issues a new certificate in the name of the new owner. The new certificate goes back to the buyer's broker and the broker sends it to the buyer — you, in this case.

For some unknown reason, your broker skipped handling all these details for you. Technically, the certificates you received were in "good delivery" form. But, until the shares are registered in your name, you are not a stockholder of record on the company's books.

Send the certificates back to that broker — by registered mail. Tell him to do the work you have every right to expect from him.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

SS Checks To Monroe 44% Higher

SOCIAL security checks going to Monroe County residents have grown by leaps and bounds in the last three years.

Total payments to local beneficiaries are 44 percent higher than they were then, according to the Government's annual report, just released.

At that time they amounted to $2,456,196 a year. Now, by virtue of an increase in the number of beneficiaries as well as an increase in the size of individual checks, they have climbed to $3,497,880 a year.

The 44 percent rise compares with a 39 percent rise in the United States and 34 percent in the Middle Atlantic States.

The report, issued by the Social Security Administration, shows a steady expansion in the scope of the program, with more and more people being brought under coverage.

At the beginning of this year, there were 4,384 persons in Monroe County who were getting checks each month, as against 3,247 in 1958.

The majority of them were retired workers who had qualified for pensions. The others were disabled workers and the wives, widows and other dependents of former workers.

Huge Proportions
The rapid development of the old-age, survivors and disability insurance system has been impressive. Starting from scratch, about 23 years ago, it has reached huge proportions, with its protection extended to the great bulk of the population, directly or indirectly.

Over 17 million people are now receiving checks each month. Many others are in the process of qualifying, through contributions to the pension funds made by themselves or by relatives.

Further enlargement of the program is planned by the Government to bring under coverage the few groups of workers who are not yet enrolled.

The amount of money being disbursed in the form of social security checks, now more than $13 billion a year, has become a matter of importance at the local level, since most of it is put into circulation without delay.
In Monroe County, such checks are now averaging $797 per recipient. Three years ago they averaged $727.

Dear Abby

Not Exactly A Prank!

DEAR ABBY: I am not the type to start trouble, but a girl (about 14) should be talked to, and I don't know how to go about it.

I got a telephone call one afternoon from a girl who asked, "Is your husband home?" (I've been a widow for three years) I replied, "No, he isn't."

Then she said, "Tell him Sylvia called to thank him for the flowers." Then she hung up.

A friend of mine told me that she had a similar call, only the girl said, "Tell him Ruth called to thank him for the candy." (My friend's husband is living.)

A neighbor of mine told me there is a teenage girl in the neighborhood who has been known to pick any name out of the telephone book and make calls like this just to start trouble. What should I do, if anything?

ANNOUNCED

DEAR ANNOUNCED: Report your experience and that of your friend to the telephone company, giving all details. They will keep the information confidential while putting a stop to the misuse of the telephone.

DEAR ABBY: How do you get people to go home? I have to get up at 6 in the morning to go to work six days a week and some of the people who visit us in the evening do not have enough sense to leave at a reasonable hour — say around 12 o'clock. Should I start throwing hints about how early morning comes? My wife says this is rude. Please give me some ideas on this.

EARLY RISER

DEAR EARLY: People who NEED hints wouldn't know a hint if it came up and hit them in the eye. When you feel that the evening should end (say about 12 o'clock) tell your guests quite frankly that you are an early riser and need your rest. Then go to bed.

DEAR ABBY: Can a man who has a legal separation in one state get married legally in another state? I don't think he can, but he says yes.

ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: A legal separation is only a separation, not a divorce. One who is only thus separated CANNOT marry anywhere!

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50c to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

LAFF-A-DAY

The Flowering Quince

By George Abraham
FLOWERING QUINCE: This is the so-called "Japonica" bush everyone asks about. I'll try to answer some of the questions we've just received. When blossoms are borne near the center of the bush instead of all over, you can help avoid this by pruning back the new growth as produced during the summer months. This produces flower buds near the tips of the branches.

Non-flowering is due to age of bush. Most of them bloom sooner or later. Try nipping the new growth back; also take a spade and dig a ditch about two feet around the bush, then refill with same soil. This root-pruning sometimes forces stubborn quinces to flower.

Tall quinces can be shortened over a period of three years by removing one-third of the tall growth each year. A drastic pruning all at once might induce an outbreak of fireblight disease. You can start new quinces from suckers originating from the base, or by cuttings stuck in sand. It's not necessary to graft a quince for blossoms or fruit.

How about the fruit? Some folks use it in bureaus and chests to perfume the sheets. Fruit is not edible out of hand but makes a fine jelly. Here's the recipe my wife uses for making quince honey: Wash and cut the quinces in quarters, then remove seed. Grind them, add 4½ cups of water to about 3 lbs. of quince. Bring to boil and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes. Squeeze out the juice through a jelly bag. Put 4 cups of juice in a large sauce pan, add ¼ cup strained lemon juice. Add 7½ cups of sugar. Place over high heat, bring to boil. Stir in half bottle of prepared fruit pectin. Bring to full rolling boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Skim and pour into jelly glasses.

LILAC BLOSSOMS: Does it pay to remove the lilac blossoms after fading? Probably it would be better for the bush if folks cut off the old seed cluster but not 1 in a 100 do it, and still get plenty of blossoms each year. Spent clusters are unsightly and the bush looks better if these are removed.

Aside from this, there isn't much justification for removing the old clusters. If you do remove them, be sure not to clip too far down as you may remove next year's crop of flowers. Lilacs produce flowers from the top buds of the branches, and for that reason this shrub shouldn't be sheared hedge-like.

Overgrown lilac bushes can be rejuvenated by a 3-year plan of removing one-third of the old growth each year. As for sprouts or "sucker" growth, it's natural for lilacs to send them out. Select a few of these each year and cut out the unwanted ones. Better still give the lilac sucker to a friend. They'll bloom as well as any others.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

EARWIGS: This pest with a pair of pincers on the tail end is difficult to check. Apply DDT or chlordane spray or 5 percent DDT dust to areas where found. Treat rubbish and wood piles, walks, fence rows. Do not apply the chemicals to plants that are to be eaten. Bantam hens make the best control for earwigs I've ever seen.

GARDEN MUMS: Why is it that mums which ordinarily bloom in the fall, sometimes get their wires crossed and bloom in June?

This is known as "Precocious Blooming" and the trouble can be due to short days, cool weather followed by hot temperature. Outdoor mums are quite different from greenhouse types in that they are particularly sensitive to temperature rather than by day length.

Day length almost entirely governs the greenhouse types, but not so with the outdoor types. A warm period followed by cooler weather causes buds to form and develop prematurely.

What to do: About first week or so in July cut the entire top of the plant off at the surface of the soil. New shoots will grow fast and even though the mum looks like it'll never bloom again, you'll find an abundance of flowers by the end of September or October 1st.

BIRDS AGAIN: We forgot to mention that cheese cloth netting makes one of the finest protection against birds interested in robbing your fruit patch. There is a specially prepared netting which can be draped over blueberry bushes, strawberry beds, small fruit trees, etc., and this does a beautiful job of thwarting the birds. Most garden stores handle it.

FREE: Want to know more about keeping birds from eating your fruit? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my illustrated bulletin, "Bye Bye Bad Birds!" My bulletin makes birds go out and eat bugs instead of fruit!

GREEN THUMB MESSAGE: Friends, when writing me, always enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. I have stacks of mail I cannot answer because of improper addressing, lack of stamps, wrong street number, loose stamps or loose clippings, or because of postal cards. Never abbreviate your town or city, and always use a postal zone if necessary. Most of the requests for Disease-free zinnia seeds have been filled, and if you're hank', please be patient as you should receive them within a day or so.

MUSHROOMS IN LAWNS:

There are all types of them which can pop up in your lawn. The small toadstools can be hand-picked and burned. Unless you know from past experience, I wouldn't take a chance on eating just any mushroom found in your lawn or field. The fly amanita will kill which frequent it. One mycologist I know once ate a raw dime-sized piece in an experiment and he reported symptoms of a heavy alcoholic jug, followed by a typical hangover the following day.

RUBBER PLANTS: How can you handle a rubber plant which has stretched to the top of the ceiling?

One suggestion is to cut the top out and root it in water or sand. Another trick is to air-layer the plant. This consists of slitting the stem at a convenient height, then inserting a wooden wedge into the wound, wrapping with sphagnum moss and a plastic bag. Roots will form inside the moss in 3 or 4 months, or longer.

After roots have formed, you cut the newly rooted plant off and pot it up in a 5 or 6 inch clay pot. It's practically impossible to cut a tall plant back to the soil line and expect it to send up a new stalk. The shock is too great.

SLIPPING ROSES: Is it against the law to slip a patented rose? Yes, it is, but I never heard of any one going to jail for it. You can start a rose from "greenwood" cuttings, any time in summer, or from "hardwood" cuttings in late summer.

A gallon jug makes a fine "greenhouse" for starting roses. How do you remove the bottom? It's simple. Take a piece of cord, dip it in kerosene and then wind it around the base of the jug. Light the cord and let it burn a few seconds, then dip the jug in a pail of ice water. The bottom will fall out clean as a whistle.

Stick your cuttings in the ground, water them well, and place the jug over them. This makes a fine greenhouse. The mouth of the jug makes a good vent, and a place to pour water for the cuttings. Fruit jars are excellent greenhouses for slipping roses and other shrubs.

CAREERS PEN: Parents often write to ask me if there is any future open for students who attend agricultural colleges. My answer is always yes, not because my wife and I were trained at one, but because there actually is a wide career selection open to agricultural graduates.

A recent survey in Illinois revealed that over 175 fields of endeavor were open to the student of agriculture. Of the 6300 male agricultural graduates queried, some reported annual incomes as high as $75,000. The range was from $4,000 a year up, with an average reported salary of $9,203.

PLANTING EVERGREENS: Spring's a fine time to plant or replace evergreens. Here are a few Green Thumb tips on planting evergreens: (1) Grab the plants by the ball and not by the top.

(2) Never drop them with a "tunk." Set them down easily. (3) Dig hole a foot larger and deeper than the ball of earth attached. (4) Set tree in hole slightly deeper than top of ball of earth. (5) Pack top soil with feet or by filling hole with water. Keep tree watered, and it's not a good idea to remove the burlap. Mulch with sawdust, peat or cocoacan hulls or similar items.

Bordeaux has an interesting history, first being used by grape growers near Bordeaux, France, to discolor grape vines to keep boys from stealing grapes. When it was found that unsprayed grapes nearby succumbed to a blight, Bordeaux became a spray of worldwide use.

You can buy Bordeaux mixture with copper sulfate (also called Blue Stone or Blue Vitriol) and lime in various proportions, or you can mix it yourself. You might see three numbers on the label and wonder what it means. The formula 4-4-50, for instance, means that 4 pounds of copper sulfate and 4 pounds of hydrated lime are used with 50 gallons of water.

If you grow grapes and small fruits, you'll find Bordeaux mixture a handy and effective fungicide. Never use Copper Sulfate alone as it will burn foliage. It's also ideal for tomatoes.

C.B. of Weissport: "What causes leaves on a clematis to turn mottled yellow, then sickly? The plant was a luxuriant bloomer until two years ago. It is 10 years old and in full sun."

Your trouble may be due to stem rot or leaf spot disease, of which there are many types. Pick and destroy diseased leaves and infected stems. Spray the plant and soil near the base with Captan once every two weeks. Next year start earlier in the growing season.

Incidentally, clematis likes a cool, moist root growth, so a mulch of peat, sawdust, cocoa bean shells, or similar material two inches deep and in a two ft. circle works fine. Do not cultivate around the base of the clematis.

K.S. of Stroudsburg: "Last year our Chinese chestnut tree produced a half bushel of burrs, but only three contained edible nuts. Was this because the tree was winter-weakened or because of lack of pollination?"
